

Enjoy Rooftop Season All Year Long At These 5 Haute Spots

BY ASHLEY FERN | DINING + DRINKING, HAUTE SCENE, NEWS | OCTOBER 10, 2018

Although it's hard to believe that fall has finally arrived, New Yorkers are not ready to give up their rooftop vibes just yet. Despite the impending weather, city dwellers can still enjoy rooftop views during the colder months at these 5 all year round rooftops.

Ophelia

Photo Credit: Ophelia

Ophelia, the art-deco inspired lounge 26 floors high in the historic Beekman Tower in Midtown East, is open year-round and perfect for capturing breathtaking views during any season. The lounge features a main bar area as well as an enclosed wraparound terrace with 360-degree views of the East River and city skyline. Velvet seating and unique curiosities give the lounge a warm, cozy vibe, making it the ideal spot for sweater weather. Ophelia will be introducing new fall cocktails like the Honey & Smoke with whiskey, lemon, simple syrup, benedictine, & egg white as well as additional programming for the season such as Sundays at Ophelia serving as an escape from football Sundays featuring a special menu with hearty items that are sure to cure your Sunday scaries like the short rib Benedict and smoked salmon on mini potato cakes.